D-Grade Final

Tee Off—8:00am

Allen Meyer

Vs Bruce Redford

Ranking: 3
Handicap: 27.0
Right-Handed
Odds: $1.90

Ranking: 4
Handicap: 33.2
Right Handed
Odds: $1.90

Preview

This match could go either way as both players have the ability to shoot pars. Redford has been hitting a good long ball recently, but it is his short game that will hold the key. Meyer is steady and his unorthodox swing can work well on his day. He was the Monthly Medal Specialist for a while and even after good rounds it is hard to get a smile out of him. Highly competitive on the tennis court, it is no different on the golf course. Fitness could also be an issue as 36 holes might cause chaffing issues. Redford might back a few cans to help the nerves helping him settle. Once again, this is a hard one to pick, but both will be looking to take home victory from their maiden finals appearance. Not a match for the golfing purists, but still will be entertaining to watch.

Editor's tip: Meyer 2/1

Open Final

Tee Off—8:45am

Steven Lynn

Vs Lindsay Storer

Ranking: 1
Handicap: 6.3
Right-Handed
Odds: $1.40

Ranking: 3
Handicap: 8.1
Right Handed
Odds: $3.00

Preview

Last year's champion, Steven Lynn would start favourite in this close battle. Both have tasted glory and Storer was in ominous form against a weary Agnew in the Semi-Final and deserved a well earned victory. Lynn had to work harder needing two extra holes to knock off the wily veteran Peter Walker in a close one. Lynn will have the edge with distance off the tee, but he is not known for his play in the wet. Despite conditions not suiting, he will be quietly confident and as long as the s-word (rhymes with thank) doesn't come into play, he will be a strong chance. Storer has the game to take it to Lynn, however he will need to hold his nerve throughout the entire 36 holes if he is to be champion. The probability is the less "Oh Lindsay"s heard, the better chance he has.

Editors tip: Lynn 4/3

B-Grade Final

Tee Off—8:30am

Don Ferguson Vs Chris Holden

Ranking: 1 Right-Handed
Handicap: 11.6 Odds: $1.25

Ranking: 7 Right Handed
Handicap: 18.1 Odds: $4.00

Preview

The 'Silver fox' has been playing finals for years and his laconic approach and unjustified self belief generally means that the pressure will not affect him. He has been talking himself up all season and to the casual observer it is a foregone conclusion. He had comfortable victories over Williams and Wetherall in the quarters and semis, but Holden's game will be new to Ferg. Holden, only a new member this year, has seen his handicap plummet and he has done exceptionally well to qualify in his maiden Championship attempt. He has a pure swing and when he is on song he will be hard to beat. Holden only has to remind Ferg about a snap hook drifting into his game on about the 12th tee and discuss Ferg's inability to hit a hybrid and he will be a chance. Ferg looks the man to beat, but a Holden victory would not be uncommon in Australia.

Editors tip: Ferguson 5/4

C-Grade Final

Tee Off—8:15am

Andrew Hutchesson Vs Tony Gleeson

Ranking: 2 Right-Handed
Handicap: 19.4 Odds: $1.95

Ranking: 4 Right Handed
Handicap: 19.7 Odds: $1.85

Preview

Both players finished runner up in 2010 and will be looking to make amends. Hutchesson's putting let him down badly last year, but if he makes a few more drop the Cheshire cat smile will return and he will be in strong contention. As long as he doesn't have to run back a few holes to get a club he leaves behind his health should be fine. Gleeson's game looked somewhat steady in the finals, with his 3-wood off the tee hardly straying from the neatly mowed surface of the fairways. He looked very Walkeresque and if this continues he will be a slight favourite. The match will more than likely be decided by their short games, with neither likely to give a putt away. A hard one to pick.
