D-Grade Final

Tee Off—8:30am

Matt Stephenson Vs Allen Meyer

Ranking: 1 Right-Handed
Handicap: 23.4 Odds: $1.90

Ranking: 2 Right Handed
Handicap: 23.8 Odds: $1.90

Preview

Stephenson has made a return to golf after a long layoff and has collected some good prizes along the way. He can hit a long ball when he is on and his high approach chipping can look spectacular when working, but quite the opposite when it goes awry. He has the ability to make more pars than Meyer, but Meyer's consistency will be the key. His Driver –Driver –putter –putter –putter approach was very effective last year and might just do the trick this year. Who knows, if he gets a long way in front, he may even pull out the odd iron that has never been used before. Stephenson, who is not adverse to making purchases online, will have more balls than a Ram sale, and has all the equipment to do the job. Another one that is hard to predict, and the short game will hold the key.

Editor's tip: Meyer 2/1

Open Final

Tee Off—9:15am

Ian 'Jock' Agnew Vs Peter Roughana

Ranking: 1 Right-Handed
Handicap: 5.1 Odds: $1.20

Ranking: 6 Right Handed
Handicap: 7.9 Odds: $4.50

Preview

In this multicultural world this is a multicultural battle. With both players using the convenience of a cart it will probably mean there won't be much conversation between players during the game. Agnew had a few tough matches in the quarters and semis and will be ready for everything Roughie can throw at him. The Dartmoor based chief superintendent of the course cruised through the finals last week and will be making sure the fairways where he hits are in pristine condition. Agnew is back to his robotic best as the half human half cobalt mainframe has been programmed to deliver. Roughana will need to make sure his short game is on song if he is to be in touch when he tackles his halftime falafel. Agnew will be the man to beat and is favoured by the punters thus far. Editor's tip: Agnew 6/5

B-Grade Final

Tee Off—9:00am

Grant Stephenson Vs Paul Harmer

Ranking: 4 Right-Handed
Handicap: 13.9 Odds: $1.25

Ranking: 6 Right Handed
Handicap: 16.5 Odds: $4.00

Preview

Dubbed the 'Chief Chalkie Challenge' this will be an intriguing match. None were more surprised than Harmer himself as he found his way into the final after defeating more fancied opponents. Stephenson himself was a surprise to knock off number 1 ranked Hutchy Jnr, but as everyone knows, match play is a completely different game. Stephenson spent the winter in high altitude training camps in the sunny eastern states to prepare himself for the finals, and also to escape Port Power's form. Harmer has shown signs of an improved game but will need to on song and have less 'this is not how we practiced' moments if he is to beat scintillating Stephenson. One hopes this match goes the distance as Pale Ale sales will be sky high, but one thinks the experience and form of Stephenson will be the difference.

Editor's tip: Stephenson 5/4

C-Grade Final

Tee Off—8:45am

John Wilkinson Vs Tony Gleeson

Ranking: 5 Right-Handed
Handicap: 17.7 Odds: $1.90

Ranking: 3 Right Handed
Handicap: 18.2 Odds: $1.90

Preview

Tony Gleeson is the defending champion and his form of recent has been quite good. Wilkinson also can not stop smiling as both his teams, the Swans and the Redlegs have picked up the flag. Such was his form this year, if Tarpeena had a team this year, they would have waltzed in for the Premiership. However it is his golf that will need to do the talking and he shows in patches he has the ability to blow the game out of the water. If he can save a few kms by staying on the same fairway he will conserve some much needed energy. Gleeson has been there before and his consistent game could be the factor that gets him over the line. It looks to be a fascinating game and one wouldn't be surprised if we see two thumbs up™ at the end of the match. Could be a cracker of a game and very hard to pick.

Editor's tip: Gleeson 1 up
