D-Grade Final

Tee Off—9:00am

Lee Bateman

Vs

Trevor Williams

Ranking: 1 Right-Handed
Handicap: 21.5 Odds: $1.60

Ranking: 3 Right Handed
Handicap: 27.0 Odds: $2.20

Preview

Williams will be attempting to go one better in the D-Grade final this year, after losing to Meyer last year. He has a lot more match play experience than newcomer, Lee Bateman, and this could work to his advantage. Bateman has certainly shown good improvement since joining and his number 1 ranking is no accident. Let's hope if things do go bad, there isn't matches and fuel around, or we might see a small fire illuminating from Penola Caravan Park around sunset. Teeing off first, the pair will set a cracking pace with Williams in the Heatseeker III and Bateman with the new whiz bang LamBuggynee 2000 which does everything but play your shot and goes from 0-60 in about 3 seconds. Like in the other grades, we will have a first time champion. It will come down to who settles first and is more consistent. Could go either way, but Bateman has the form to get him over the line.

Editor's tip: Bateman 3/1

Open Final

Tee Off—9:30am

John Mossop

Vs

Leo Price

Ranking: 4 Right-Handed
Handicap: 9.2 Odds: $1.60

Ranking: 7 Right Handed
Handicap: 10.7 Odds: $2.20

Preview:

This final is another fine example of how golf caters for all shapes and sizes. John Mossop will be keen to avenge his loss from the previous year and will feel better about his chances after knocking off Briggsy in the first round, before coasting to an easy win in the afternoon. Leo didn't look like qualifying until the final round, and has now found his way into the final. Whatever shirt Sue picks out of her wardrobe for him to wear, you can guarantee you will see him from anywhere on the course. Lucky he wasn't playing Ferg, we could have had our first all pink final since the ancient Olympics. Back to the golf, both can be very handy performers on their day with Mossop's precision irons a key to his success. He may just want to check his freezer to make sure there isn't 1/2 kilo of the wrong ice planted in there prior to the game. Price will be confident and may even sneak the odd sledge into his game. Can he break the Captain's curse? Whatever the result, a first time Champion will be crowned on Sunday either way.

Editor's tip: Mossop 3/2

B-Grade Final

Tee Off—9:20am

Paul Harmer

Vs

Mikey Redman

Ranking: 3
Handicap: 18.8
Right-Handed
Odds: $5.00

Ranking: 5
Handicap: 14.9
Right Handed
Odds: $1.20

Preview:

This will be a classic battle between a couple of young fellas out for their first B-Grade trophy. Redman with his man-bun looks like he would be more suited to drinking Cabernet Franc in a hipster wine bar in Fitzroy, but we know he is quite handy on the course. He has a compact swing that is consistent and sneaky long and will start out favourite. If he is as adept at rolling in long putts as he is a rolling tobacco, he will be a strong chance. Harmer on the other hand is in bit of a form slump having drifted out from 14 to 19 in recent months. A secret visit to 'Yoda' Agnew amidst the apocalypse helped him get over the line last week, but he might need for than 150m off the tee if he is to be drinking out of his shoe in pair of budgie smugglers in celebration. Whatever the result, a few Coopers and a good time will be had. Based on form, Redman would seem to have the advantage. Editor's tip: Redman 6/5

C-Grade Final

Tee Off—9:10am

Ant Mathys

Vs

Allen Meyer

Ranking: 4
Handicap: 19.8
Right-Handed
Odds: $1.80

Ranking: 2
Handicap: 19.4
Right Handed
Odds: $2.00

Preview

This could be a one of battles of the day with Ant Mathys taking on Allen Meyer. An old rivalry of Tarpeena vs Glencoe come up again, with Glencoe taking the honours last year. However, this year Tarpeena has another rep in Mathys. He has certainly found some length off the tee and if starts dropping big putts like he is capable of, he will be hard to beat. Meyer has continued to use his consistent approach that is well suited to the Penola layout. The only man to carry two specialist drivers in his bag with the irons still in mint condition. With a close contest on the cards, lets hope they don't mark their balls with their initials, or it could get confusing. If Mathys gets up there will be rapturous applause, which unfortunately he wont hear. With the hotdogs taken care of by the ladies, Meyer can concentrate on the game at hand, which could be an epic battle. Editor's tip: Mathys 2 up
