D-Grade Final

Tee Off—9:00am

Bill Cheers

Vs

Robert 'Blue' Kuhl

Ranking: 1      Right-Handed
Handicap: 20.1      Odds: $1.80

Ranking: 2      Right Handed
Handicap: 20.8      Odds: $2.00

Preview

The battle of Julian Street West will be a beauty. Neighbourly tensions might be on edge this week; the atmosphere as they collect their morning paper could be as thick as Donald Trump. Cheers has a good track record in Championships, winning a C-Grade Championship only a few years prior, whilst Kuhl has to go back to 1997 to last see his name in gold edging on the honour board. Both have the potential to play scintillating golf, but it is often few and far between holes. Cheers is still on a high from Sturt's 1 point victory in the SANFL Grand Final and this could be the icing on the cake. Kuhl might be worn out from babysitting his Grandson, but the big fella will take it all in his stride. Those on the committee might wish Cheers gets over the line so the list of items to discuss at the next committee meeting isn't as long. This may be the closest match of the championships, Cheers in a close one.

Editor's tip: Cheers 3/1

Open Final

Tee Off—9:30am

Jock Agnew

Vs

Lindsay Storer

Ranking: 1      Right-Handed
Handicap: 7.5      Odds: $1.35

Ranking: 6      Right Handed
Handicap: 9.5      Odds: $3.00

Preview:

Yes. you are reading correct, this battle of the old timers is a flashback to the 1900's with two players who were supposed to be past their prime. However, you cant beat experience and these two gentlemen have 8 titles between them. The fact that Jock has 7 of them is no fluke. The man is a machine both physically and also when it comes to match play golf. Between them, they also have dodgy knees, hips, shoulders, hairlines and a serious nicotine habit. If they both play to their potential , it could be determined by a battled of attrition! Jock has Ferg in his corner, which could be a benefit to both parties. Storer disposed of Steven Hill and Stump on his way to the final and is good form. Agnew drifted out to double figures to recoup some coin but has come back with interest, cleaning up a few Monthly Medals on the way. It will be an intriguing contest, one would think that the experience of Agnew will be the difference.

Editor's tip: Agnew 5/4

B-Grade Final

Tee Off—9:20am

George Kidman

Vs Shane Anderson

Ranking: 1 Right-Handed
Handicap: 11.5 Odds: $1.40

Ranking: 3 Left-Handed
Handicap: 14.3 Odds: $3.50

Preview: These boys have played plenty of golf together, usually on the OMG LMB PGC RRT and it will be interesting to see how they go not hungover. Fair chance this won't be the time where this happens for the first time. Kidman may not have been around the Penola layout much recently, but he has certainly travelled the interstate and international circuit. The boys could be struggling from a lack of sleep, Kidman due to kids and Anderson due to the lure of the POW and resulting after closing drinks. However, we know from the past this has never affected his form. Kidman can be volatile if things don't go well, so he will need to keep his head and his 3-iron if he wants to come out in front. Anderson on his day, would be hard to be beat. Kidman should go in as favourite after narrowly missing out on Open qualification. Whatever the result there will be plenty frothies shared after. Let the Bombers fly up!

Editor's tip: Kidman 5/4

C-Grade Final

Tee Off—9:10am

Shane McPherson

Vs Steven Skeer

Ranking: 4 Right-Handed
Handicap: 19.1 Odds: $2.50

Ranking: 6 Left Handed
Handicap: 16.9 Odds: $1.60

Preview

This intriguing contest will be a great game to follow. Whilst not littered with pars and birdies, their ability to scramble will be a key to the game. Both can be red hot on their day, but can also be equally as cold. Skeer has an ultra competitive edge and won't give a hole easily. Whatever happens, Flanders will have his GoPro recording every moment—if he wins DVDs of the game will be at IGA on counter for $9.99 or free with every . Skeer may struggle around the 36 holes, but stealing Agnew's buggy will help spend over $100. Skeer also has a record of performing on the big stage, so will have nerves of steel. If McPherson gets up the discount trolleys will be filled to the brim and the jokes will be served thick and fast. The bookmakers will have Skeer as favourite but no one will be surprised if Flanders stock takes a victory.

Editor's tip: Skeer 4/2
